The 2011 NOSSA white is all Bical. Beautifully balanced, with all of its parts integrated, including the oak, this should only get better in the coming months, allowing its fruit to become more expressive, in its graceful and charming style. Perky and friendly, this may go through some stages with age, but it should certainly hold nicely for a few years. Its hallmark will always be its elegance and its persistence. Drink now-2016. Filipa is her father's daughter, which means there is a lot of tradition here as well as creativity. From Bical to fortified Baga, this is a diversified and intriguing lineup.
